ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Globalization has led to foreseeing changes across the world in knowledge, ideas and values and has contributed in shaping a global and information based society. On various occasions in different contexts, several commissions and committees have reviewed the achievements to develop a vision for future. Though the new age faces the diverse issues; social, cultural, environmental etc. Yet the possibilities and opportunities are immense in wake of new technology, new knowledge and globalization. Due to pressure and its repercussions the job of a teacher has become more demanding than ever.

Today, we need a vibrant and sustainable teacher education system that can meet the needs of growing knowledge society. So, there is urgent need to prepare innovative and efficient teachers those who can manage society at the speed of change and can meet the emerging challenges of education of 21st century. Teacher education requires multi-pronged approach to fine tune the young minds. Transformation of uniformation into wisdom and generating the desired skills in students require robust teacher training. This seminar “Emerging Quality concerns of teacher education” will provide a unique platform for academicians, researchers, policy makers and professionals to critically deliberate on issues vital to the development of teacher education and its quality. The goal is to provide a forum for interchange of knowledge, experience, concerns and innovations which are necessary to transform teacher education in India.
